NATION'S BRIDE IS MARRIED.

Washington, Feb. 17.—With a plume circled of virgin gold, in the historic East room of the White House at thirteen minutes after 12 o'clock today, Alice Lee Roosevelt, eldest daughter of the President of the United States, and Nicholas Longworth, the Representative in Congress from the First district of Ohio, were united in marriage.

The ceremony—one of the most impressive ever performed in the Executive Mansion—was according to the liturgy of the Protestant Episcopal church, of which the bride is a member. It was solemnized by the devoted beauty of a Cathedral service. No ceremony of a similar kind ever was witnessed by a more distinguished assembly. There were present as guests, not only the most eminent representatives of the American Government, but the personal commissions of the Kings and Potentates of the powers of the civilized world, constituting an assemblage not only one of the largest, but the most distinguished ever gathered at one time in the White House.

A halo of a hundred years of roman the White House history hung over the bridal couple. Miss Roosevelt was the twelfth bride according to accepted authorities, to plight her troth within its classic walls and the identical spot where she today joined hands with the husband of her choice, "for better, or for worse." 'Tis hallowed in the memory of another White House bride, "Nellie" Grant, who thirty-two years ago on that same spot became the wife of an Englishman, Algernon C. F. Sartoris. Tender, indeed, must have been the recollections of Mrs. Sartoris of that day, now long ago, for she was one of the witnesses of Miss Roosevelt's wedding.

One Thousand Guests. While the bride, herself, and the President and Mrs. Roosevelt had desired that the ceremony of the marriage should be quiet and simple as possible, it was found impracticable to limit the function, as was intended at first, to the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom. It became necessary to include among the guests invited certain official classes and personal friends of Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth, and in all, the people bidden to the ceremony numbered a thousand.

The ceremony took place in the East room, made famous by a century of brilliant social functions, but no event in its history ever was so brilliant and beautiful as that of today. The classic splendor of the room, the walls enhanced by exquisite and artistic decorations and the brilliant sunlight of a gorgeous day lent added beauty to the setting of the wedding.

It had been intended to light the magnificent room with the hundreds of softly shaded electric lamps, but the great crystal chandeliers, but, while artificial lights were utilized throughout the remainder of the White House, it was determined to flood the marriage scene with sunlight.

In the Sunlight. It was a beautiful concert founded upon the pretty proverb: "Happy is the bride the sun shines on." No lovelier day in winter ever dawned. "The air was as balmy, almost, as in spring. No more auspicious day for a wedding could have been imagined.

For days the White House, ordinary open to visitors during specified hours of each day, had been closed, pending arrangements for today's ceremony. The East room, in which the ceremony occurred, was decorated most elaborate ly. Not since the incoming of the administration of President Roosevelt have the White House apartments been so exquisitely graced with flowers as they were today.

While no space necessary for guests was taken up with floral decorations, every room in the lower part of the Executive Mansion was brilliant with flowers and decorative plants.

Beginning of Ceremony. At four minutes after 12 o'clock Mrs. Roosevelt, on the arm of her eldest son Theodore, Jr., descended the main staircase, and entered the East room by the west doors. She was preceded by Major Charles McCauley and other military aides, and was escorted to a point at the left of the platform where the wedding ceremony was to take place.

The mother and sisters of the bridegroom and other designated members of his family already had assumed their places at the right of the platform. That a way might be kept clear for the approach to the extemporized altar of the wedding two strong white satin ropes were stretched from each side of the main entrance to the East room to points on the east wall of the apartment on the north and south sides of the floor.

Mrs. Roosevelt was followed by her son Kermit and her daughter Ethel and her sons Archie and Quint in couples. The children stood with their mother on the north side of the altar platform. As she entered the East room Mrs. Roosevelt graciously acknowledged the greeting of friends. She wore a superb gown of cream-colored brocade heavy and richly designed, on which were figures of blue and brown interlaced with threads of gold. The dress was cut in the Princess style with a long train of the same brocade material. It was trimmed in brown chiffon, embroidered in blue and gold.

The yoke of the bodice was formed of embroidered chiffon, as were the trimmings of the elbow sleeves. The skirt, exquisitely designed, was paneled in blue and gold embroidery. She wore long white undressed kid gloves, and ornaments of diamonds.

Bridegroom Follows. Following her almost immediately came the bridegroom Nicholas Longworth, accompanied by his best man Thomas Nelson Perkins, of Boston, one of the members of the corporation of Harvard College, and a classmate at college of Mr. Longworth. They descended the main staircase and entered the East room under the escort of the military aides. The groom and the bride, respectively designed, were paneled in blue and gold embroidery. She wore long white undressed kid gloves, and ornaments of diamonds.

Scarcely had the bridegroom entered the East room when the organ, on the state dining room at the west entrance of the main corridor were flung open and the bridal procession started for the extemporized altar.

Then Comes The Bride.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt had descended from the upper apartments of the White House by the elevator. They had passed into the private dining room and thence into the state dining room. There they were joined by the ushers. Quincy A. Shaw, of Boston; Frederick Winthrop, of New York; and Francis B. Bangs, of Boston; Guy Norman, of Boston; A. B. Wallington, of Cincinnati; Lars Anderson, of Washington; Vicome Charles de Chambarn, of the French Embassy, and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Shaw led the bridal procession.

Following the ushers came President Roosevelt and the bride, her hand resting lightly within the right arm of her father. As the procession moved through the main corridor and into the East room, the marriage band, orchestra rendered effectively the grand march from Wagner's "Tannhauser." Miss Roosevelt never appeared to better advantage. Perfectly self-possessed and thoroughly appreciative of the situation, she graciously recognized and bowed to guests and friends who lined the way to the altar.

Alum baking powders are unhealthy. Do not use them for raising food under any circumstances. So detrimental are alum baking powders considered, that in most foreign countries their sale is prohibited. In many States in this country the law compels alum powders to be branded to show that they contain this dangerous acid, while in the District of Columbia, Congress has prohibited the sale of all food that contains alum. Alum baking powders are sold to consumers at from 10 cents a pound to 25 cents for 25 cents, or 25 cents a pound, and when not branded may generally be distinguished by their price.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS 16 INDICTMENTS FOR OUR RETURNED BY GRAND JURY. PETITIONS FOR NEW COUNTY SENT IN.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 17 (Special).—The advocates and opponents of the Beckham County Bill, introduced by Representative Beard, of Breckinridge county, appeared before the Kentucky Statutes Committee this afternoon. The map of the county and petitions signed by 3000 of the people in the proposed new county were submitted to the committee on behalf of the county. It was shown that all the legislation all requirements had been adhered to. Claude Mercer, of Hardinsburg, and W. H. Barnes, of Hartford, spoke in behalf of the county, declaring that the people down there wanted it; that Fordville was more accessible to the people affected than the several county seats, and that the territory would be greatly developed.

C. M. Crow, H. P. Taylor, Senator Tabb of Hardin and Grayson counties; Senator Owen, of Breckinridge, and Representative Litley of Grayson county had been held to remonstrate and that he had a hundred letters from his constituents protesting against the change. He said the three counties from which the new county was to be made were paupers, and the new one would likewise be a pauper county. Mr. Taylor said he never knew how the new county was to be formed until he came to Frankfort and saw the map.

Broom Factory at Jolly. Messrs. E. and B. DeJarnette are running a bustling broom factory at Jolly Station and these two young men with their modern machinery and equipments turn out as fine brooms as are found. The sale is raised by the proprietors themselves. They buy the handles in Louisville. Some of the farmers in Jolly section are beginning to raise broom sage for this thriving little factory. The News hopes to see the DeJarnette brothers' business grow in mammoth proportions.

SOME QUEER BELIEFS

SUPERSTITIONS THAT LINGER IN THIS MOVING WORLD.

There is not a country on the face of the globe that is without its peculiar notions or quaint ideas regarding signs and omens.

Though many of the old omens and superstitions have passed, there still remain among every race hundreds and thousands of popular beliefs. Early religious teachings, fanatical beliefs, worship of idols, sorcery, necromancy and the like perhaps laid the foundation for the superstitions found among the peoples of the globe. It may be interesting to specify a few particularly. By comparing them with those which have come under his own observation in the United States the reader will be astonished at the similarity of a number and set to wondering how they became so widespread. Did they in some form exist before the confusion of languages, or were they carried from country to country by restless individuals in their travels and explorations during the centuries? How is it that the most important and degraded tribes on the other side of the world have some superstitions in common with the most civilized and progressive countries on this side?

The Eskimos believe in ghosts. To change the wind they drum, chant and howl, shoot against it, build fires and as a last resort fire the graves of the dead. When a child dies in Greenland the natives bury a live dog with it to be used by the child as a guide to the other world. When asked about this superstition they answer that "a dog can find his way anywhere." Similar to this custom is the pathetic one prevailing in some parts of France, where a mother buries her dead child with his favorite toy or her own hair, "that it may not feel quite alone in the grave."

Speaking of France, the belief is popular that the position of a drowned body may be discovered by a floating loaf of bread—possibly the only scientific basis being that the loaf is apt to be carried by a current just as a body is. In Java a live sheep is thrown into the water to locate a drowned body by sinking near it. In certain sections of the United States a shirt belonging to the deceased or some near relative is thrown in to float on its gossamer mission, but in Norway the search for a drowned body row to and fro with a cock in the boat, fully believing that the bird will crow when the boat reaches the spot where the corpse lies.

The cock and certain omens have long been connected in various countries. If it crows at a particular time in Persia it is the sign of some event affecting the family, and the master of the house rushes out to feel the bird's feet; if they are cold, it is a forewarning of death, but if warm, the sign is propitious. In West Virginia the crowing of a cock before the dawn tells of a coming "company," while it is believed in other portions of the south—if not by the rural populations of other sections of the Union—that the shrill clamor of a rooster indicates early weather changes or the announcement of unwelcome news.

The natives of Cuba have one belief at least in common with Americans; they regard the hooting of an owl as a very bad sign. If they can succeed in killing the owl they believe this will break the spell involving the life of some member of the family. There is something weird in its hooting, and I have known persons to get out of bed at midnight to drive it from the tree or a corner of the house, believing it a harbinger of ill. Perhaps the bird is held in awe in other countries. Others of the feathered tribe are so held or regarded with reverence. The people in the south of Ireland are particularly fearful of the robin entering their houses; it is prognostic of severe snows and frosts. The crow and pigeon are looked upon as unlucky in Poland, where the goat is a harbinger of good luck! In Sweden if one kills a wren he will break a bone before the year is out.

The animals and insects that in friendship live near the abodes of man ought to have outlived the superstitions surrounding them long ago, but they have not. In Switzerland if a huntsman going out in the morning sees a fox cross his path or meets an old woman he turns back home. The first snow on a game trail is second to him; he will shoot a man hidden in the leaves or do some other irreparable mischief. In America it is the rabbit crossing one's path which brings some sort of bad luck. In Hull, England, it is unlucky to kill crickets. In Lancashire it is thought they cut holes in the stockings of those who kill them. In portions of England, also, it is customary to announce to the bees a death in the family, especially that of the master, while if a swarm settle on the dead branch of a tree a death will occur in the family within a year. In rural America if one kills the first snake he sees in the spring it prognosticates that he will overcome his enemies during that year. On the other hand, the African natives reverence the snake, and once a year kill a cobra and hang its skin to a tree, tail downward, where all the children are brought out and made to touch it, as this will put them under the serpent's care. If they find a dead snake they dress it in clothes and give it a great funeral. The American Indians believe every white deer has a madstone in its stomach. The cat and dog, universal pets though they be, are associated with superstitious belief. In England it is considered unlucky to sell a dog. If one howls before the door of some American house he tells their fear the brute foretells an early death in the family. In Germany it is believed that any one who during his lifetime may have made enemies of cats is certain to be accompanied to the grave amid a storm of wind and rain, and in Poland it is thought that the voice of a cat at the foot of a bed on the breast will cure consumption.

Sailors of all countries have been noted for their peculiar superstitions from the time Jonah was thrown overboard to the present. Scotch sailors will not speak of a four foot animal while on the ocean. The Spanish never put the left foot of a vessel when stepping on board, for to do so, they believe, will bring disaster. He must be a courageous Swedish sailor, indeed, who will mention the name of a port for which he is bound.

The following "notions" are as peculiar as they are popular when they have sway: A Turk who finds a piece of bread on the ground picks it up, kisses it and carries it until he finds a hole in which it can be inserted. To do otherwise will doom him to the hell and hell to him for welcoming the devil. A young woman who is to be married, if she is to be a widow after marriage, a modern Grecian mother, before putting her child in its cradle, turns three times around before the fire while singing her favorite song. This is to ward off evil spirits.

When a boy a friend of mine attempted to do the hands of a watch by bidding me follow these directions: Take a knot in a yarn string for every year, touching a knot to each year; then bury the string, and when it rotted the watch would be gone. Recently I learned that the Farro Hindoo, troubled with a wart, looks at the new moon, picks up a pinch of dust from beneath his left toe, puts the wart with it, and when the moon goes so does the wart.

In a cursory way I have specified some of the superstitions obtaining in England and elsewhere. I shall close this article with the mere mention of a few others. The English housewife will not sweep the dust out of the front door, fearing to sweep away the fortunes of the house. There are American housewives, when ready to move out of their home, who will not sweep the dirt out the front door, believing it would bring misfortune to the next tenant. Neither will they carry a cat or broom with them. In Devonshire it is believed the person who plants a bed of lilies of the valley will die in the next twelve months. There are American States there are many people who think that if a weeping willow be set out in the yard some member of the family will die before its next leafy branch reaches the eaves of the house.—Nashville American.

Lame Back.

This ailment is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm two or three times a day and rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If this does not afford relief, bind up with a piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm and once or twice a day. It is almost sure to follow. For sale by Short & Haynes, Cloverport.

He Was Too Late.

"This," said the Jeweler, "is what happened here last month:

"Mr. B. drove up in a hansom and entered my shop, accompanied by his valet, who carried an oblong box of steel.

"Mr. B. asked for a private interview, and I took him into my office. There he opened the box, exposing a splendid array of diamond and pearl necklaces, earrings, tiaras and stomachers.

"Mrs. B.," he said, "is now abroad. Before she returns I want you to extract all these stones and to replace them with good imitations, selling the real jewels and giving me the money. This, of course, is to be a confidential transaction. Mrs. B. is to know nothing of it."

"I looked at Mr. B.," continued the Jeweler, "according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. 'I think I blushed a little.' My dear sir, I said, 'I should be glad to do as you wish, but it is impossible. Two years ago Mrs. B. called here on the same errand that now brings you, and this errand, in her case, was successful. The paste jewels that you bring me are worth little more than the hire of the hansom awaiting you outside.'"

The old original GROVES' Tasteless Chilli is iron and copper in a tasteless form. No cure, no pay.

A Garden in a Tub.

Water lilies in tubs are better than nothing at all. A kerosene barrel sawed in half will furnish two tubs, each big enough for one plant. The tubs should be well washed out and soaked for some time in water in order to remove as much as possible of the oil and the glue which is put to render the vessel tight. Three or four days to a week will suffice for this.

It will be better, though not essential to have the tub sunk about half its depth in the earth so as to keep the roots cool. Though the leaves and flowers love sunshine, the black ooze in which the roots naturally live is always cool.—Garden Magazine.

LOW RATE TO FRANKFORT.

During State Farmers' Institute Last of This Month And March 1.

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 20th, 1906. Mr. Jno. D. Babbage, Secy., Cloverport, Ky. My Dear Sir:—This Department has secured a railroad fare of one and one third fare plus twenty-five cents for those attending the State Farmers' Institute, which will be held at Frankfort, February 27th and 28th and March 1st. Those desiring to attend are requested to take certificates, when signed by the secretary of the Farmers' Institute, will entitle the holder to a one third rate returning. This rate cannot be secured except upon the presentation of these certificates when by ticket agent at starting point.

This is a splendid opportunity to visit the State Capital during the sitting of the General Assembly at a reduced rate, to hear some of the most distinguished lecturers in the United States, to enjoy the hospitalities of the Frankfort Business Men's Club and, most important of all, to aid in forming a farmers' organization, which will be backed by the State Department of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics.

Remember that this Department can accomplish nothing without the co-operation of the farmers and it is counting on you to help make it a success. There is a spirit of progress in evidence all over the State and a backward step at this time would be a severe blow to the agricultural interests. Yours for the State, Hubert Vreeland, Commissioner.

A Menace to Health.

Kidney trouble is an insidious danger, and many people are victims of it. It is insidious because its symptoms are recognized. Foley's Kidney Cure corrects irregularities and strengthens and builds up the kidneys, and it should be taken at the first indication of kidney trouble, as it is impossible to have good health if the kidneys are deranged.—Sold by A. R. Fisher.

A Kentucky Sunset.

Down at the end of the iron lane I see the sunset's glare, And the red bars lie across the sky Like steps of a wondrous stair.

Below, the throng with uplifted eye Sweeps on in its heedless flight Where the street's black funnel pours its tide Out into the deepening night.

And no one has stopped to read God's word On the fiery heavens scrolled, Save an old man dreaming of boyhood days.

And a boy who would fain be old.—Charles Hamilton Musgrave, in the New England Magazine.

Common Colds Are The Cause of Many Serious Diseases

Physicians who have gained a national reputation as analysts of the cause of various diseases, claim that if catching cold could be avoided all a long list of dangerous ailments would never be heard of. Every one knows that pneumonia and consumption originate from a cold, and chronic catarrh, bronchitis, and all throat and lung trouble are aggravated and rendered more serious by each fresh attack. Do not risk your life or take chances when you have a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure it before these diseases develop. This remedy contains no opium, morphine or other harmful drug and has thirty years of reputation back of it, gained by its cures under every condition. For sale by Short & Haynes, Cloverport.

All Over the Earth.

No animal is not with over so wide an area of the earth's surface as man. The creature which most nearly approaches him in this respect is the dog, which in one form or another is found everywhere except in the West Indies, Madagascar and the Oceanic Islands. Even to these places dogs have been introduced by men who came from countries where they abounded. In making the above statement the word "dog" is taken to be equivalent to the more scientific term of canidae, which genus includes not merely the domestic dogs of various races, but wolves, foxes, jackals and wild dogs, which all belong to the same great family. There is indeed no doubt that our canine pets are descended from the same common ancestors as the wild creatures just mentioned. Rats and mice are found almost everywhere on the earth's surface except in the central portions of the African and Australian continents and in the cold regions of the extreme north and south. Rats, too, are very widely distributed.

His Small Bank Account.

Independence is Smith's strong point. He is a young professional man, with only a partly developed income as yet. Once in awhile, perhaps three or four times a month, he gets a check from a client. These checks he deposits in one of the larger banks for a time, but his balance was always merely nominal, and he finally received a hint that he ought to carry at least $500 with him. He closed the account, and then began planning how to be a depositor with a small account and yet be under no obligations.

He went to a smaller bank, stated his circumstances frankly and asked what the cashier would consider the cost a month of carrying his account. He was told to come in the next day and, doing so, was informed that he could open an account and have a balance or no balance, just as he pleased, for $2 a month. That means $24 a year, but it suited him.

"Now I put in a check—when I get one—and draw against it," he says, "and I'm under no obligation to carry one. I have as much independence as the fellow who carries a balance running into the thousands. The scheme isn't patented, either."—New York Post.

Man Is Oddly Made.

The established fact that a person's hands or feet are rarely of uniform size is better known than that the two sides of a human face are never alike. It is a scientific principle that the eyes are out of line in two cases in five, one eye being a little stronger than the mate in the ratio of seven to ten persons. As a rule, the right ear is a trifle more elevated than the left. Individuals having fair complexions show the largest percentage of visual defects. One person in fifteen has perfect eyesight. Sound may always be more acutely distinguished with one ear than the other. In this connection two are not as good as one. The nails of middle fingers grow the fastest, while those on thumbs are slowest in time. The nails of the little finger never progress with the same rapidity. In more than 50 per cent of people the left leg is shorter than the right one. The bones of an average human male weigh twenty pounds; a woman's skeleton scales six pounds lighter.—New York Press.

Luckiest Man in Arkansas.

"I'm the luckiest man in Arkansas," writes H. L. Stanley, of Bruno, since the restoration of my wife's health after five years of continuous coughing and bleeding from the lungs; and I owe my good fortune to the world's greatest medicine, Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which I know from experience will cure consumption if taken in time. My wife improved with first bottle and twelve bottles completed the cure. Cures the worst coughs and colds or money refunded. At Short & Haynes druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Two Odd Volumes.

The book done by a French monk who instead of writing the words cut the letters from the volume and formed a sort of stencil has its opposite in a Swedish translation of the four gospels, which was done in gold and silver leaf. The ink was lettered out from thin sheets of beaten gold done in delicate tracery, while the body of the text is of heavy silver. The foil is cemented to the parchment page with an adhesive which in spite of the undoubted antiquity of the book has not lost its powers. Most fresh books were evidently done to perpetuate the name of the ingenious owner, but this certainly absolutely no information as to its maker.

A more modern feat is the output of a Lyons silk weaving firm, in a prayer book in which the letters are woven into the silk. But one copy was made of the book, and this is in the government library at Paris.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY Take LAXATIVE BROMO QUIN TABLETS, containing Bromo, Quinine and Sugar. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

The Word "Demagogue."

"Demagogue," which means merely a leader of the people, seems doomed to attract an evil sense to itself. In English, Dryden and Swift used it in a good or neutral sense, the latter applying it to Demosthenes and Cicero, and John Richard Green wrote enthusiastically of Pym as "the grandest of demagogues," but the manner in which it was used in the "Elton Billington" attributed to Charles I. led Milton to speak of it as "a golden word" and that is how it is invariably used to-day. In its native Greek its history was similar. It could be applied to statesmen such as Pericles, and from being used by Greek Tories contemptuously to characterize such popular leaders as the leather seller Cleon, it could eventually be defined by Aristotle as "flatterer of the democracy."

The Yellow Fever Germ

has recently been discovered. It bears a close resemblance to the malarial. To free the system from disease germs, the most effective remedy Dr. King's, New Life Pills. Guaranteed to cure all diseases due to malaria, poison and constipation. 25c. at Short & Haynes, Drug Store.

If the latter be regarded two phantoms of the nearer finger will be observed mounting guard, one on each side.

CHILDREN

If You Have Any Ailing Ones This Will Interest You.

"We see so many little boys and girls about town who are weak, thin-legged and hollow-cheeked," said a member of the firm of Short & Haynes, our well known druggists. "It seems a shame to allow them to remain so for they will grow up into weak, sickly and nervous men and women, without the vitality to work or enjoy life."

"If," continued he, "the fathers and mothers of such children would believe what we say of Vinol, we would see a great difference in the appearance of the younger generation of this city. You know Vinol is not a patent medicine, and is just the tonic growing children need. It will make for them good, healthy flesh, sound bone, hard muscle, and rich, red blood."

"True Vinol is a cod liver oil preparation, but it does not contain a drop of oil, or any bad tasting feature. It is so delicious that all children love it, yet it actually does contain all the medicinal curative elements found in the best of Herring Liver Oil, and is as pleasant and best medicine for children as we ever sold."

"It is because we know that Vinol will do that we guarantee if it fails to make your children well, short & Haynes, Druggists."

Evolution of the Needle.
Sewing needles of bone, stone, glass and bronze antedate all historic records, but those of iron, brass and steel are comparatively modern. Bone needles have been found in Egyptian tombs that are known to be over 4,000 years old, and similar domestic instruments of bronze and copper have been found in the tombs and burial caves of Europe and America which are believed to be much older than those found with the Nile mummies. The needle first appeared in the human form in European countries in the year 1410, but the art of making them was kept a secret for upward of 150 years after the date last given. In the year 1680 they were first made in the American colonies, but at what point is a mooted question among the historians.

Walt Whitman.
Of the days when Walt Whitman was a nurse in the hospitals of the civil war, a biographer of the poet says: "He would often come into the wards carrying wild flowers newly picked and strewn them over the beds like a herald of the summer. Walt did not know that they were messengers of life to the sick, words to them from the earth-mother of men. And then as he left of a night after going his last round and kissing the pale, bearded face in fulfillment of his own written injunction he would hear the boys calling: 'Walt, Walt! Come again, come again!'"

Hindoo Idols.
Several weeks ago I was in an Indian village and peeped inside the chief Hindoo temple. To my great surprise I saw the portrait of a famous London beauty, nicely framed, calmly looking down at the idol beneath it. The lady, I am sure, never dreamed that she would be worshipped in this way.—Lucknow Letter to London Mail.

Valuable.
"Have you seen Professor Gableton, the scientist, lately?"
"Yes; I listened to him for more than an hour at the club last night."
"Indeed? What was he talking about?"
"He didn't say."—Puck.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a man or woman to be afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh around the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. The unpleasant result is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet. Home of Swamp-Root, all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonials from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake; not remember the name of the Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

FALSE SENTIMENT.

The highest possible development of civilization is not mechanical, but moral. It does not lie in the ingenious adaptation of the forces of nature to man's needs; it is not in the harnessing of the electric elevator. It could exist without the knowledge of the utilization of by-products like coal tar. It lies, in fact, in the heart of the people themselves, and its highest development may be expressed in the words: "Respect for law."

We have short memories, but surely not so short that we have forgotten the horrors of the Siencau disaster. Of the directors who did not direct, the inspectors who did not inspect, and the commanding officers who did not command, a gang of scoundrels, at least less as ever flaked the lives of their fellow creatures for a few dollars—only the captain of the boat has been sent to jail. His plan was that if he did not break the law he would lose his job. He knew that rotten life in the mire of the sea, the incalculable peril of his crew, were all matters which could be severely punished. His plan, in fact, amounted to one of guile, with the excuse that other people were worse than he.

And yet this plea seems to appeal to some people. Talk of a petition for pardon is plentiful and seems to win sympathy from otherwise sane newspapers. As the matter stands, the captain of the scum is the most valuable officer of the sea, for his profession could have placed before him. Two places do not make a white. If we can not lay the other reasons by the heels, the more is the pity; but we are not going to let one criminal escape because we can not catch all criminals.

We get something of the same idea at Annapolis. The naval cadet is told that he must not have the lower classes, and that if he does he will be dismissed. He gives his word of honor as an officer and a gentleman that he will obey the rule of the institution. He breaks it and he is dismissed. Congress forgets what the enforcement of respect for law means to men who will have to administer it themselves in their future profession. It stifles the efforts made to secure absolutely necessary discipline by re-instituting offenders.

At the bottom of all this there is a false sentiment of pity. The pity is always a surface indication, and never extends to the real victims of the evil involved. As Thomas Paine said to Edmund Burke's romantic defense of Queen Marie Antoinette against those who could also see French royalty paying a fair price for the sins of a hundred generations, his pity was all for the soiled plumage; never for the injured bird. The real sufferers in the instance quoted are the people who travel by excursion boats in the one case, or the cadet who who honestly means to qualify for the efficient service of his country and is entitled to be guaranteed the opportunity of doing so, in the other.

There is no question of the day which means so much to Wall Street. Public credit, which is the breath of its life, is bound up in it. If we tell of the sentiments of pity of an official in a position of responsibility who has shown his moral unfitness for it, we also are inflicting upon ourselves an injury greater than any outside enemy can offer.—Wall Street Journal.

Just a little Kodak after meals will relieve that fulness, belching, gas on stomach, and all other symptoms of indigestion. Kodak digests what you eat, and enables the stomach and digestive organs to perform their functions naturally.

A foolish person builds foolishly, and a wise one sensibly, a virtuous one beautifully and a vicious one badly. If a workman is well put together it means that a thoughtful man cut it and an honest man cemented it. If it has too much ornament it means that its carver was too greedy of pleasure, if too little that he was rude or insensitive or stupid or like a man. A man may hide himself from you or misrepresent himself to you every other way, but he cannot in his work. There he sure you have him to the utmost, all that he likes, all that he sees, all that he can do—his imagination, his intelligence, his perseverance, his honesty, his clumsiness, cleverness, everything is there. If the work is a cobweb you know it was made by a spider, if a housework by a bee, a workman cut it, thrown up by a worm and a net, wrought by a bird, and a house is built by a man worthily if he is worthy and ignominiously if he is ignominious. And all ways, from the least to the greatest, as a thing made is good or bad so is the maker of it.

Animals' Play is Exercise.
The relaxed rhythmic movements so common among animals at play, the gamboling of lambs, the play of kittens and many similar animal activities, imitated by man in the primitive dances which form so large a part in the social and religious life of all aboriginal peoples. These motions of leaping, swinging, swaying and twisting of the body have, all of them, a most intimate and powerful influence upon the body's activities, organic and muscular. It is a favorite with many animals and is especially practiced for the purpose of relieving fatigue. Rolling is peculiarly enjoyable and grateful to the animal because it provides not only relief for the tensed muscles, the aching joints and the slow moving circulation, but because as the animal rolls the firm pressure of the ground upon his body constitutes a most effective and agreeable massage.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Female Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Can we dispute the well-known fact that American women are nervous? How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, I am as nervous as a wild bird?" or, "Don't speak to me. Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children."

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Fits of depression or restlessness and irritability; spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps; pain in the abdominal region and between the shoulders; loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia; a tendency to cry at the least provocation—all these point to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. M. E. Shotwell, of 103 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I cannot express the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, headache, loss of appetite. I could not sleep and would walk the floor almost every night."

"I had the doctors and got no better, and life was a burden. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has worked wonders for me. 'I am a weak woman, my nervousness is all gone and my friends say I look ten years younger.'"

Will not the volumes of letters from women who are strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you wish to remain strong, healthy and encouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be as easily cured as other women.

Horses After Night.
There is one kind of vehicle that neither the oldest nor the youngest of us have seen on the street at night, or, if he has seen it at all, only infrequently. That is a hearse. Every other kind of conveyance used by modern civilization about the streets freely after nightfall—the hearse alone comes under the curfew law. Early hours seem to be imposed upon that somber carriage by common consent. The public doesn't like to see it after dark, and common sense doesn't like to drive it. No doubt there are hearsees that are compelled by the exigencies of funeral arrangements to come home at unreasonable hours, but when forced to an infringement of the unwritten law they proceed through quiet streets where they will be least likely to wound the sensibilities of the superstitious.—New York Herald.

Shortheaded Animals.
So far as naturalists have been able to ascertain there is no such thing as shortnosed animals in a state of nature. In the case, however, of domestic animals and wild ones in confinement shortnosed is by no means unknown. Many people who have kept dogs and cats will remember instances of pet animals which were unable to distinguish friends from strangers at a short distance. Horses, too, frequently suffer from shortnosed and other derangements of the vision, and this kind of thing is sometimes met with in the case of cattle. The diseases of the eyes, which frequently affect wild animals in captivity are to be chiefly attributed to the narrow space in which they are confined. The eyes are never exercised upon distant objects and therefore lose the powers which use of this kind calls forth.

The Glowworm Cavern.
The greatest wonder of the antipodes is the celebrated glowworm cavern, discovered in 1801 in the heart of the Tasmanian wilderness. The cavern or cave (there appears to be a series of such caverns in the vicinity, each separate and distinct) are situated near the town of Southport, Tasmania, in a limestone bluff, about four miles from the sea. The appearance of the main cavern is that of an underground river, the entire floor of the subterranean passage being covered with water about a foot deep. All-Old-Time Cough Syrup.
This is wrong. A new idea was advanced two years ago in Kennedy's Honey and Tar. This remedy cures all the ailments of the throat and lungs and loosens the phlegm at the same time. It expels all cold from the system. It clears the throat, strengthens the mucous membrane, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. Sold by All Druggists.

CAMPAGNED ON POVERTY.

How Congressman Garrett of Tennessee Won His Election.

Finis J. Garrett, the new Congressman from the Ninth Tennessee district, explains to his colleagues how to get here in a way that will not help the business of the merchant tailor. Garrett was born in 1875. His father, Noah Garrett, decided to give the youth a name suggesting the end of things, which the original Noah had escaped. Young Finis taught school in 1897, was admitted to the bar in 1899, married in 1901, and three years later concluded to take a hand in the direct primaries of his district in an attempt to upset the Hon. Rice A. Pierce, who has been in Congress for fourteen years. To onlookers it seemed a forlorn hope. Pierce so regarded it, and treated the competition as wholly good natured.

But Finis took out his oldest suit of clothes. They were badly worn at the elbows, and frayed at the wrists. In campaign methods he literally had "something up his sleeve." He took the stump on the single issue that Pierce had been enjoying $5,000 a year from the Government for fourteen years, enough to make a man a millionaire; that it was not fair to have so much money lodged in one man's hands; that the good things of life should be passed around. The voters of the district agreed to this. Their sympathies were with the seedy looking young aspirant against any man who had drawn such a colossal salary for so long. Finis won out and is here in Congress, where he has been assigned to the committees on Claims, on Education and on the Improvements of the Mississippi River, to all of which he may be supposed to bring the qualifications of an expert.—Boston Transcript.

"Sweetheart or sister?"
"Er—why, she hasn't said which she will be yet."

That's the universal report from the great Southwest, where prosperity is the common experience of the many. It is a report given not boastfully, rather by way of encouragement and advice. The Southwesterner is in a position to advise. He has passed from his present condition of dependence, or partial dependence, to the most perfect independence. He has broadened his acres and increased his holdings three, five, and even ten fold by the exchange of high priced lands in the East for cheap farms of the Southwest, making his extent—every acre "an acre of good ground." A Powerful Drug.
Cloves are simply the dried flower buds of a beautiful evergreen tree growing naturally on the Spice Islands. These flower buds are gathered when they have become of a bright red and are just as the point of opening. The name comes from the resemblance of the prepared spice to small nails, from the French word clou, for nail. Cloves are very heavily charged with a pungent, volatile oil, as much as 20 per cent sometimes being extracted. This oil is valuable for flavoring and scenting purposes and has a limited hold in medicine, but the habit of "eating cloves," in which young folks and too often old ones indulge, is very reprehensible, as the oil is a powerful drug, becoming in many cases an insidious poison.

THOUGHTS

*The greatest truth may lie in smallest things,
The greatest good in what we most despise,
The greatest light may break from darkest skies,
The greatest chord from even the weakest strings.*

CHERIO.

It has been an open winter all over the country.

Let Irvington fall into line with a Commercial Club.

The man who swears off taxes will never lay up treasures in Heaven.

The "pot" makers are "otherwise engaged" when grand jury is convening.

DAVE SMITH will not be a candidate for re-nomination in the congressional race.

The result of the work of the grand jury is not surprising except to blind men.

If our Commonwealth's Attorney would get busy there would be something doing.

A MAN may be tall in statue, but short in all things that go to make up the real genuine man.

If the "lid" was put down on Sunday in Cloverport there would be a lot of third cream alers.

The trouble with our school system is that, like our road system, it has fallen into the mire and mud of partisan preferment.

Our old friend T. M. Watkins, of St. Joseph, Mo., sends us an illustrated edition of the "St. Joseph Gazette" setting forth the good things of St. Jo.

The sooner the farmer finds out that the real and only road to better prices for his products is through co-operation and combination, the sooner will he ride in a prosperity band wagon.

SATURDAY, June 2, was fixed as the date for holding a primary election to nominate a Democratic candidate for Congress to succeed Hon. David H. Smith of the Fourth district.

Our city lamp lighter is not doing his duty. A large percentage of the lamps, even on our main street, are seldom burning after 8:30 p. m. Come now, brother lamp lighter, do your duty.

COL. BEN JOHNSON is the best man in the congressional race so far, in our opinion, and the News stands for Johnson until a man of better qualities enters the field. This paper is for the man, not politics.

H. HARDWAY, of Harlem, Mont., remembers the editor with a post-card, with a picture of a wagon of "Irrigated Spuds." The illustration illustrates the good work Uncle Sam is doing in the West in irrigating the lands.

THE HON. D. C. MOORMAN, Glendene, G. B. Cunningham, Cheneault, G. W. Dodson, Frymire, and J. D. Babbage, Cloverport, will attend the State Farmer's Institute to be held in Frankfort next Tuesday, Feb. 27.

GUS W. RICHARDSON and T. Scott Mayes, are both out of the race for Congress. This leaves Ben Johnson with a clear field. If no other candidate is announced by May 17 the primary will be declared off. Mr. Johnson is not likely to have any opposition. The people are with him and for him.

The friends of temperance all over the county are applauding Senator Dick Owen for his stand on the Unit bill. If the Unit bill fails it cannot be laid at his door. They say that Ed. Shellman is doing all he can for it, too. We say well done, good and faithful servants, there will be crowns laid up in Heaven for you.

We congratulate Louisville and Mayor Barth. When men like Peter Lee Atherton, Oscar Fenley, W. C. Nones and Theodore Ahrens are appointed to take charge of a great public enterprise and a public trust, surely things are looking up for our great and good city. Here is an example for all the state to follow. Put the best men regardless of their political views in office. These appointments of Mayor Barth will be an uplift to every community in the state.

EVERY man in town, whether business man or not, ought to become a member of the Commercial Club. The organization is on a sound basis now and results will be forthcoming. Dr. A. A. Simons plays his part as president well and the other officers are equally as good. Attend the meetings, take part in them. If you hear of parties wanting locations, hand their names over to the Commercial Club. The Club will do every thing possible to locate an honest enterprise in Cloverport.

THE Methodist congregation at Irvington Sunday night, after the services resolved itself into a temperance meeting, nominated and elected Rev. Roe as a delegate to go to Frankfort in the interest of the county unit bill. A collection was taken up and enough money raised to pay Rev. Roe's expenses to stay there a week, if necessary. If every community would lend the same action and send a delegate, it would make such an impression on our Senators and Representatives that they would not dare vote against the bill.

SENATOR R. W. OWEN was a passenger on train 42 last Monday. He had been home to spend Sunday. The Senator was looking well. Frankfort life seems to agree with him. The session, he says, will wind up on the thirteenth of March. There are ten Sundays and two holidays which run the session this far into March. Senator Owen was a member of the committee which went to Hopkinsville to report on the situation in that institution. He says his committee found every thing in tip top order and well kept. He says it is one of the best managed institutions in the state and run at less cost. The capacity of the institution he says is only capable of taking care of 450 inmates while they have over a thousand enrolled. The allowance for each inmate is $140 a year and out of this amount, Dr. Board has saved enough to partly build a laundry. He says Dr. Board is a splendid Superintendent and has the institution thoroughly systematized and organized and is running it on up-to-date business methods. It is well known to every reader of this paper that the News does not like Dr. Board's political methods a little bit. But if he is making a good officer and doing his duty to the inmates and to the state, and we presume he is, we are glad to give him due credit for it.

EKRON.

Groves Frymire is on the sick list. Rico Peak was in Louisville Thursday.

Mrs. S. J. Brown spent last week in the city.

Richard Childs went to Louisville Sunday.

Miss Ray, Louisville, is the guest of Miss Nell Shacklett this week.

Adamarian Wraether, Louisville, is spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Chambliss.

Forest Frymire, Anderson, Ind., was a very pleasant guest of his uncle, Will Frymire, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Coban Richardson, of Guston, spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bent Shacklett.

Miss Cora Nease and Homer Brainer were married last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Bent Nease.

Mrs. Mary Ann Richardson left Saturday for Louisville where she will make her home with her son, James Richardson.

Quite a number of Ekron people attended church at Salem Sunday. Rev. Jagers, their pastor, delivered a very impressive sermon on the subject "Arise, let us go hence."

Miss Pearl Shacklette and Miss Gertrude Allen made their usual trip to Brandenburg Saturday afternoon. They take music lessons from Mrs. Lewis.

Mace Simpson and family enjoyed a turkey dinner given by his father, Robert Simpson, at Meadville. A number of children and grand children partook of this sumptuous repast.

Mrs. Alf Palmer, who has been spending some time with her mother, Mrs. A. E. Gentry, at this place, returned to her home in Louisville Sunday accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Bland Shacklett entertained a few invited guests Saturday evening in honor of their son, Dr. Junious, who spent Saturday and Sunday at home. This is Junious' last year in the Medical college.

Mrs. Neam Dowell entertained her Sunday School class, which is composed of twelve young men, to a peanut party last Friday evening. Each young man invited his best girl who took a sack like the dress she wore which was filled by the hostess. The young men then drew, having to eat peanuts with the one who wore a dress like his sack. Social games were very much enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served in abundance. The midnight hour came too soon for those present, for they loathe to leave this beautiful and hospitable home. As they bid Mr. and Mrs. Dowell good night they made a unanimous expression that this was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season.

MADAME BERTHA KALICH IS WINNING FAME IN ENGLISH-SPEAKING PARTS.

Unfamiliar With English Language Six Years Ago, She Has Now Mastered Our Speech—One of a Race to Produce Famous Players.

With so much interest focused on happenings in Russia, it would be strange indeed if we did not receive a taste of Russian drama. The leading cities of the country are now centering their attention upon the Russian play, "Monna Yanna," the tale of which is being essayed by Madame Bertha Kalich, a Polish actress who won fame in the Yiddish theatres on the Bowery in New York City.

Madame Kalich may not be considered a beautiful woman, but through the years she has won a reputation for her acting she touches every spark of humanity that glows in the human breast. Six years ago she did not know a word of English, yet her mastery at the present time of one of the most difficult of all speaking tongues, is remarkable. Not only does she speak English well but she is familiar with five other languages—German, Polish, Russian, French and Yiddish. For years she has been acting at the Russian and Hebrew theatres of New York City. Her first appearance in an English speaking play was a year or so ago when she played the name part in "Fedora." Her earlier performances were disappointing but at the end of a fortnight she made a profound impression upon her audience.

TRAPPERS' PROSPEROUS TIMES.

Furs Worth More Now Than For Past Thirty Years.

The many trappers operating along the northern border will reap a rich harvest the present winter, meaning many comforts, even luxuries, in the log cabins of scores of sturdy settlers in the wilds of the northern country, who are mainly dependent upon their traps during the cold months for a livelihood.

The settlers and professionals in the country directly tributary to the Great Lakes look to mink, marten and otter to make their trapping operations profitable, and the pelts of these little animals at present command a higher price than at any time during the past thirty years, while there has been a decided slump in the prices paid for furs from the black, blue and silver fox which bring only $50 each now where a year or two ago they were as high as $200 apiece.

Last winter $4.50 was considered a good price for a mink pelt, and it was not more than a season or two back that $2.50 was the highest paid for a single pelt of this kind. Now a choice mink will bring $11, and a marten $15 to $20, where $5 or $7 was paid last winter. An otter skin is worth $22 just as it comes from the trapper's hands, which is away above any price paid for more than thirty years. Quite a few fisher are caught through the northern Minnesota traps, and are worth from $8 to $10. Beaver are very scarce in this state. They are worth from $7 to $9 each.

The higher prices paid for furs will also prove a boon to the Minnesota

UNCLE SAM'S SECOND NAVY

GOVERNMENT MAINTAINS A TRAINING SCHOOL FOR REVENUE OFFICERS.

Plenty of Work and Study—Lack of Social Events a Feature of This Governmental School—Daily Regime of the Cadets.

Uncle Sam has one governmental school which, while little known, is well worthy to rank with West Point and Annapolis in the thoroughness of the mental and physical training which it gives its graduates. This well-heralded educational institution is located at Arundel Cove on Chesapeake Bay, about six miles from the city of Baltimore, and its purpose is to prepare for their profession the cadets or future revenue officers of the United States Revenue Cutter Service.

It is only within a few years that the general public has been awakened to a realization of the opportunities and advantages open to an officer in Uncle Sam's "police force of the sea." In consequence of which there has been of late a marked increase in the applications for admission to the cadet school, which the young men must be not more than 25 years of age and not less than 5 feet 3 inches in height. It is necessary to be a native-born American as a cadet, but no person should be admitted with the idea that he is to get into the cadet corps, for the entrance examinations are quite as severe as those at either West Point or Annapolis.

However, all the examinations for the selection of cadets are strictly competitive. Political and social influences are entirely eliminated and this is unquestionably the most democratic school under the government. The cadet spends three years of the training school, each summer being devoted to a practice cruise on a bark-rigged vessel during which the young men get a taste of all kinds of sea duties and incidentally store up good health for the academic year, which extends from October to May.

The pay of a cadet is $500 a year and a ration of 50 cents a day, which allowance he is permitted to purchase uniforms and textbooks and meet his mess expenses. The sum of $18 per month is also withheld from the pay of each cadet in order that upon graduation he can purchase the uniform and outfit of a commissioned officer. When the cadet graduates he receives a commission as a third lieutenant in the Revenue Cutter Service at a salary of $1,400 per year. Three promotions will bring him to the rank of captain with $2,500 salary, and an increase of ten per cent. for each five years' service.

A Strenuous Life.

The cadets at the training school on Chesapeake Bay lead a strenuous existence. They "turn out" at 6:30 o'clock in the morning and after half an hour allowed for dressing, report for drill which continues for forty-five minutes or the call for breakfast is given. From 9 until 12:30 o'clock there are periods of study and recitation, then half an hour for recreation before dinner, which is served from two to two o'clock. In the afternoon there is more study and recitation with forty-five minutes' drill. Half an hour before supper and one hour after supper are allowed for amusement and then from 7 to 9 comes another study period. An hour of "sky-rocketing" closes the day and the cadets turn in at 10 o'clock.

During the three year interim the future Revenue Cutter officers acquire a wide range of book learning including English, mathematics, history, hygiene, seamanship, engineering, astronomy, chemistry, civil government, and naval architecture. Building is looked after by means of the "setting up" and other athletic drills. While the officers in charge of the training school for Revenue Cutter cadets fully realize that all work and no play makes for dullness, no such prom-

BALDWIN'S NEW AIRSHIP.

Believed by Experts to Surpass any Flying Machine Yet Constructed.

Captain Thomas Baldwin believes he has found a way to navigate the air with fair success. Captain Baldwin, who is known as America's foremost aeronaut, having been engaged in the profession of sailing to the clouds longer and more continuously than any other citizen of the republic. He began ballooning in the ordinary way nearly a quarter of a century ago. Then he invented the modern type of parachute and in his inventing and experimenting, went from one thing to another until he hit upon the dirigible balloon type of airship.

In the past half decade Captain Baldwin, who makes his home in Los Angeles, California, has built five different airships, all on the same general pattern, but each different in many respects from its predecessor. He hopes to improve on the new airship which has recently been completed, but the fact remains that this latest flying machine is so far superior to everything that has gone before it that it is well worthy of notice.

In the new airship the gas bag or balloon which lifts it has a capacity of 16,000 cubic feet of gas or nearly twice as much as "the" bag of the one which Captain Baldwin exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition. It is made of Japanese silk, cotton inside and out. From this bag there is extended by means of a net of cotton lines twice a framework which contains the propeller and steering apparatus of the airship and which is known as the "keel." In Captain Baldwin's earlier airships this keel was made of iron and each frame cost $700, but in the new airship the keel is of Oregon spruce, the lightest and strongest wood in existence.

A Powerful Little Engine.

The engine which furnishes power for driving the balloon is located about 75 feet from the balloon, and is a gasoline motor very similar to those in use on motor-cycles. The motor is capable of 75 horsepower, and is able to develop 7½ horsepower, but it is seldom if ever run at more than 3,000 revolutions per minute, and is required even when the aerial flyer is facing a heavy wind.

Attached to the keel at the forward end of the airship is the propeller, which is eleven feet in diameter and has two 18 inch blades of painted canvas. These blades whirl around at the rate of two hundred times per minute, but it will be observed that this propeller is at the forward end of the ship instead of at the stern, where it might naturally be looked for, and this gives the keystone to one of Captain Baldwin's most important inventions, namely, the scheme of having the rapidly revolving propeller pull the ship through the air instead of pushing it.

Nearly fifty feet from the propeller, at the other end of the keel, is the rudder by which the steering is accomplished. This rudder is about six feet eight inches in size and consists of a frame attached to the framework of the keel is also a tank which is capable of holding two gallons of gasoline. The navigator of the new Baldwin airship has nothing in the way of a platform on which to stand, but must balance himself on the skeleton framework of the keel, bracing himself by means of the net which suspends the balloon from the gas bag.

Baldwin's new airship cost him more than $1,800 and by reason of the gas required to inflate it as well as other expenses, each ascension costs in the neighborhood of $250. The hydrogen gas which is employed in the balloon is not so important, however, as the propeller can do its work in any kind of weather, and the water on the basis of one part acid and one part iron to four parts water. This gas is generated in a big tank.

THE NATION'S FORESTS.

BRILLIANT ADDRESS AT ANNUAL CONVENTION OF AMERICAN FORESTRY ASSOCIATION.

Secretary Wilson Sounds Warning Note on Forest Destruction—Million Acres Should Be Tree-Planted Every Year in Vigorous Campaign.

Secretary Wilson has more than once manifested a deep interest in the question of American Forestry. Mr. Wilson has, in fact, for some years been elected and re-elected President of the American Forestry Association, a powerful organization, composed of public spirited men throughout the country, which has probably done more than any other one influence to awaken national interest in the enormous destruction of the forests and the necessity for their businesslike management and preservation, even to the reforestation of denuded areas and the planting of trees upon barren prairie lands.

That the movement in the United States is coming to be considered an important one is shown by the evidence of the increased recognition of the subject by Congress, which is also due largely to Secretary Wilson's enthusiasm. When Mr. Wilson was appointed Secretary of Agriculture by President McKinley, his forestry division consisted of one forester, an assistant forester and five clerks and with an annual appropriation from due to reckless and wasteful methods, he has seen the axman and the millman move westward swiftly and surely mowing down everything in his course until there is scarcely any more timber left to be cut. At the present rate of timber cutting in the United States, 40 years from to-day there will be not an acre left of merchantable timber.

Common Sense Forestry.

"What are we going to do?" asked Dr. Hale in his deep voice. "We must use both common sense and sentiment in dealing with the forest question. It is a very great question. The individual interested in American forestry, even though they be millionaires or multi-millionaires, can not accomplish anything definite and lasting unless the states and the general government can be awakened to the necessity of giving the cause large and substantial assistance which is an international sense, in forestry, means that the forestry question should be put upon a business basis. In order to make a large, immediate profit forests are destroyed; they should be cut with some reference to the future, in other words they should be cropped. All the governments of Europe rely largely upon their forest lands for their revenue. A similar condition should and could be brought about in this country."

THE SUNSHINE SOCIETY.

An Organization Which Brings Good Cheer Into Darkened Hearts.

Among the many societies organized by the generous men and women of this country for the betterment of others none has quite so interesting a history and unique a character as the International Sunshine Society.

It is so broad in its scope that it embraces all the charities, yet is in itself so simple in its aims, that it is almost too good to be true. It is a change of kindly greeting and the passing on of good cheer, material or spiritual, to those who are in need of it. Under any rules, but there is always the personal touch of sympathy which means so much to the unfortunate man or woman to whom fate has seemed unkind.

A more appropriate name could not have been found for the Society, for its members of which pledge themselves to bring sunshine into the lives of those who are in the shadow, to lighten someone's burden; to speak the cheerful word that may bring new hope, new life and energy; to take notice of the lonely; to do the little act of kindness, thoughtfulness and generosity that manifest the human, the personal interest in one's fellow creatures.

Opportunities for doing a kindness are often lost for lack of thought. The Sunshine Society is a society that strives to cultivate the habit of sympathy that will give them a keener appreciation of the needs of those around them.

The Society is unique in that there are no dues, no fees, no dues, no dues, in general, every minor officer and member gives his or her services. Even the necessary clerical work is freely donated, the personal sacrifice that every officer and member makes to carry on the work cannot be estimated.

Its Origin and Growth.

The Society was incorporated under the laws of New York in 1900 and to-day there are 400,000 enrolled members.

The Society is the outgrowth of a thought expressed by Mrs. Cynthia Weston Alden in the office of the New York Recorder several years ago. Mrs. Alden, who is now a resident of New York, was the recipient of a number of cards from her co-workers on the paper as to the necessity of a society for the purpose of giving aid to those in need. She was so touched by this statement that she decided to give it effect and with one accord every one exclaimed:

"What! You would give our presents away, wouldn't you?"

"Why not?" was the answer.

"A laughing investigation soon developed the fact that the waste basket was the ultimate destination of most of the cards received."

"Let me give you the history of one pretty ten-cent card that came to me a year ago," said Mrs. Alden. "I received a card from a friend, and I enjoyed it so much that I thought at once of an old uncle who would appreciate it. I wrote him a letter, and he said, 'I thought, did enjoy it, and so much so that he immediately recalled an old friend to whom it would prove a special force. So he recited the poem and sent the card on. This recipient found the card so helpful that she, too, felt the charm of the words, and before the seven days' holiday was over the card had carried its Christmas message to six different persons. Of course this is exceptional, but it is still an example of the infinite possibilities of a gift accepted in the true spirit and with a true heart. It is the double delight of receiving and giving."

The cards which had afforded the little sermon were spread out and were

MADAME BERTHA KALICH

So far this is the story of Monna Yanna for the American people are not accustomed to the mannerisms and acting of the Russian plays.

Madame Bertha Kalich is tall and of the brunette type usual to the Hebrew, with eyes that while most expressive, can hardly be said to be winning. She cannot be classed as beautiful, but her art has a ministry which is sure to bring fame to her. Critics lay great faith in her position as an actress. They believe that after thorough schooling on the American stage, the requirements of which are far different from those of the Russian, she will become famous, for she comes of a race which has achieved wonders. And when we encounter marked talent in the Hebrew race no one living can predict how many rungs of the ladder of fame may be traversed successfully.

The greatest actors, not only of the present age but of the past, have been and are Jews. Of the women we have from Rachel to Bernhardt, and the men range from Dawson to Edwin Booth, while passing reflections may be given to the ability of David Garrick, Mrs. Siddons and a host of others in whose veins were some drops of Oriental blood.

Bertha Kalich's appearance in Chicago was greeted with an outburst of enthusiasm which continued throughout the many weeks of her performance there. Such a well-known critic as W. H. Hubbard of the Chicago Tribune in reviewing "Monna Yanna" and its leading actress, said, "Madame Kalich is enrolled in the list of great artists. She is now an actress peculiar and uncommonly attractive qualities and gives every promise of becoming in a few seasons one of the most notable women on the American stage. Watching her during the week has brought conviction that she is the possessor of remarkable talents and that these talents are susceptible of a developing and shaping which can but place her high in the esteem of the most able of the best theatre-goers and add another great artist to the small list of really gifted players that our stage can boast. She has the power indeed, penable to any artist who is to endure and whose work is to be remembered and whose influence—the power to attract the public.

Woman's Sweet Will.

On a pillar erected in Canterbury, appears the following:

"Where is the man who has the power and skill to turn the torrent of a woman's will? For if she will, she will, and you may depend on it. And she won't she won't, and that's the end of it."

Evolution of Woman.

When Eve brought woe to all mankind Adam called her woe-man. When she wept with love so kind, He then pronounced her woe-man. He called the pine martens and their "woe-man's" pockets trimming. The people call them woe-men.

found to possess many possibilities of happiness, which the markings spoiled for passing on.

Inspired by this idea of sending out remembrances that might be multiplied fourfold a new set of cards was given to Mrs. Alden by the Recorder's staff and these cards were at once sent out. The thanks received for them were so pretty that an item was made of them in the New York Recorder. This caused further correspondence and resulted in a club for the exchange of friendly greetings.

The name of "Chat" was at first chosen for the club, but later the membership grew so large that the name "Good Cheer" was adopted and in 1896 the name of the society was changed to the "Sunshine" Society, and its active members were to include all who were desirous of brightening life by word, thought or deed.

The growth of the Society has been almost phenomenal. From the parent society branches have sprung up until every State in the Union is represented with regularly enrolled presidents and organizers.

When a State has ten branches, each one consisting of at least ten members, it becomes entitled to a State president. Besides the thousands of members in the United States, there are flourishing branches in England, Japan, India, France and Germany.

The competition to furnish the Society's motto ran for three months and

THE BEGGAR TRUST.

REGULARLY ORGANIZED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MULCTING THE PUBLIC.

Ingenious Make-Ups and Cruel Devices Practiced—Arrest Made and the Principals Sent to Prison—Famous Orient Beggar.

As old as civilization, so old is the history of the beggar kingdom, for wherever have been found any collection of men, the beggars there played their business despite indifference and the scorn of the majority, yet always reaping their harvest from the philanthropic. The poorer one draws to the warmer countries more and more numerous one finds the professional beggar. Egypt, India and Italy are the worst examples. In countries which boast of their higher civilization, beggary flourishes not through want or poverty, but through a class of people who make beggary their profession and who have made a fine art of the methods of reaching the soft hearted. And beggars of this class do not seem to stop at cruelty.

A recent case was noted in press dispatches of unusual brutality practiced by a beggar upon three children who were the best of the "Shoek Holmes" stories in a wonderfully "made-up" beggar who fools the police.

Fake Deformities.

While a number of the beggars found in large cities are really deformed—blind, lame, maimed, crippled, or deaf and dumb, yet it is a known fact to the police authorities that there are many who have been told to make up their faces with various devices.

One of the best of the "Shoek Holmes" stories in a wonderfully "made-up" beggar who fools the police.

By Telephone.

"This is the residence of J. Pierpont Morgan. The house is on fire. Send an engine at once. This is Herbert L. Satterlee, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law, talking."

There was unusual excitement at headquarters recently when the telephone rang and the foregoing words came over the wire.

The engine was sent, and no team ever made a quicker run. When the firemen arrived at 215 Madison avenue, they found the multi-millionaire, they found Mr. Satterlee in the doorway.

The only sign of fire was a slender sheet of flame shooting out of the chimney.

"For heaven's sake, do not use any water," Mr. Satterlee begged.

"You will ruin irreparable paintings if you do. The fire is in the chimney. But please be quick."

The firemen yielded to Mr. Satterlee's request, and used hand grenades instead of the hose. They found Fireman Daniel Kelleher on the roof. He had almost extinguished the fire by throwing salt down the chimney. The fire caused no damage.

Quickly Disposed Of.

A certain colonel is an authority on all military matters, and he is often besieged by cranks with pneumatic rapid firing guns, rifles, dirigible war balloons, and other martial inventions.

On one occasion he was sitting in his private room at the barracks with a friend when a servant brought in a card.

"Oh, send him in," said M. "His business won't take more than a minute or two."

There was shown in a wild-eyed, long-haired man, twisting his soft hat nervously in both hands.

"Colonel," he said, "I have here—and he took out a small paper—a bullet-proof armor coat. If the government would adopt this—"

"Put it on. Put it on," said the soldier, and he rang the bell. The servant appeared as the inventor was getting into the coat.

"Jones," said his master, "tell Sergeant Brown to order one of his men to load his rifle with ball and cartridge and—"

"Excuse me, sir, I forgot something," interrupted the inventor, and with a hunted look he disappeared.

generous public. These earnings were placed in a large pool, part of which was used in payment for legal representation when one of the "trust" might be arrested. At one time there were thirty men in the corporation, but the police of New York gradually got one by one of the members into the toils of the law and the "trust" was broken up.

Maintenance of a Great Institution Through Compulsory Contributions of Men of the Regular Army—Has Beautiful Grounds.

The National Soldiers' Home in the District of Columbia is the only institution of its kind in the United States. The home was founded March 3, 1880.

The idea of the establishment is said to have originated with General Henry Wood Scott, after whom the main building of the home is named, and of the home of the multi-millionaire, they found Mr. Satterlee in the doorway.

MORE POULTRY,

LESS TOBACCO

Says C. L. Polk, of Skillman-- Fine Points in Favor of Chicks.

LESS WORK, MORE PROFIT.

Skillman, Ky., Feb. 19. Mr. Editor:—I was in the last issue of the News that Mrs. Fred May has a fine brood of young chicks and you ask that if any one can beat it, to let you know. So here we come. The poultry dame of this section, Mrs. Polk, has at this time 175 young chicks, ranging in size from a quail down to ten days old, and the (wooden) hen is setting again with 100 eggs, which will come out shortly. While Mrs. May is commendable for her nice start, possibly more so than Mrs. Polk, yet the latter has the advantage of not having to wait for old biddy to become broody. She has hatched all hers by incubation and has found that the raising of winter chickens for early market is not a matter of impossibility as some may think. These chicks are healthy and growing nicely, not withstanding the recent cold spell we have just gone through. And right here I would like to make a suggestion to every reader of your paper, and especially those that grow tobacco, to raise more poultry and less or no tobacco. What man is there, with the help of the wife and children who cannot with the same amount of labor and expense raise more dollars worth of poultry than he can tobacco.

Lets figure a little. There are counted one man's crop. On an average, we raise about 700 lbs. of tobacco to the acre, 350 cent at C. $21.00, $2.50 fags at 50, $12.50, 100 trash at 20, $2.00. Total $35.50, multiplied by 3 gives $106.50 for one year's work.

Now how many hens will you have to raise to bring you that amount? Two hundred and thirteen hens, weighing only 5 lbs. each, at present prices, will bring you that amount after shipping expenses are paid. Now who would not rather raise 130 hens than three acres tobacco? Figure on it, you men who live in the rural districts, and have been a slave to trusts, and see if you can't get the consent of your mind to try it just for one year as an experiment any way. Buy you an incubator if you can. If you can't let every old hen on the farm that will set give the little chicks your attention, and my word for it, you will be well pleased with the results. Then you will always know what to do with your poultry, when sometimes it puzzles you to know what is best to do with your tobacco. But you say if every body raised chicks the market would be overstocked. Not a bit of it. Poultry commands higher prices every year.

Here is my plan for you: Save every pullet you raise, make that the point sell everything else for but before they have consumed too much food. Don't keep them too long.

Your pullets will begin laying by early winter, and with good warm quarters, and the right kind of feed, will lay about all winter, when eggs command the highest possible price. When the price of eggs drops to ten or twelve cents, hens will be at their highest price; then sell your hens. Thus you have all the egg product at highest prices. And your hens will go on the market at a time when they will bring more than 24¢ any other time of the year. So take my advice for once and try it.

SKIN ECZEMA IN WORST FORM

Black Spitchles All Over Face—
Produced Severe Itching—Year's Treatment by Physicians Did No
Good and Became Despondent—
Affected Parts Now Clear as Ever
—Alabama Lady's

CURE BY THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black spitchles all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of my town. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Shortly afterwards, my husband in reading a copy of the Cuticura Remedies, which I purchased, was entirely cured of the first bottle of Cuticura Resolvent in connection with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every spitchle was left as clear as ever. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago."

"The Cuticura Remedies not only cured me of that dreadful disease, but they completely restored my skin as well; and I have been the means of curing many others of the same disease by the Cuticura Remedies, and I don't hesitate in saying that the Resolvent is the best blood medicine that the world has ever known."—Mildred E. JOHNSON GOES TO OHIO COUNTY.

Senator Ben Johnson, whose announcement for Congress in the Fourth district has taken considerable of the wind out of Dave Smith's sails, is visiting in Ohio county today in the interest of his candidacy. It is claimed by those in a position to know that Senator Johnson will easily beat out Congressman Smith in the race for the nomination, as he will have the administration support, in spite of his advocacy of Blackburn's candidacy in the recent contest.

The administration forces realize that Senator Johnson is one of the strongest men in the Fourth district, and in addition to this fact the election of Mr. Johnson to Congress would leave a vacancy in the state Senate from the Nelson, Shelby and Spencer district, which will also be filled by an administration man.

NATION'S BRIDE IS MARRIED.

Beautiful Wedding Gown.

Her wedding gown was an exquisite creation. It was of heavy white broad satin, point lace, chiffon, filmy tulle and silver brocade. The material from which the gown was created was manufactured expressly for Miss Roosevelt. The design, intricate and delicate in its details, was destroyed as soon as the necessary amount of the material for the dress was completed.

The gown had a very long court train of elegant silver brocade. The bodice was made high without a collar, was trimmed with beautiful and old point lace, the sleeves being finished at the elbow with the same filmy material. Long white gloves barely met the sleeves. A voluminous tulle veil practically completely enveloped the graceful figure of the charming bride. In her hair it was caught and held in place by clusters of orange blossoms.

Her dainty slippers, in perfect harmony with her gown, were fastened with silver brocade and tulle bows caught with orange flowers instead of buckles. The bride wore no jewels except the magnificent diamond necklace, which was the gift of the groom.

She carried a lovely shawer bouquet of the rarest and divinest white orchids which the groom was able to procure.

The fargile blossoms were arranged in cascade effect, falling over her right arm nearly to the knees of her gown. The bouquet was tied with calico satin ribbon in long bows.

Claims His Bride.

As the others reached the platform they separated and the President and the bride passed through the two lines Mr. Longworth stepped forward and received Miss Roosevelt from the arm of the President, and together the bride and bridegroom ascended the two steps of the platform.

Miss Roosevelt relieved the bride of her bouquet and held it through the ceremony.

As Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth faced Bishop Satterlee a long fell over the assemblage. Every one of the thousand present wished to catch every syllable of the ceremony which was to follow. In distinct, resonant voice, the Bishop began the beautiful marriage service of the Episcopal church. The responses of both the bride and the bridegroom were audible distinctly throughout the great apartment.

Particularly clear were those of the bride, whose voice was as natural and distinct as in ordinary conversation.

While her face was a shade paler than usual, her self-possession was perfect and she went through the ceremony without a symptom of nervousness.

Surrenders His Daughter.

When the venerable Bishop Satterlee asked the question prescribed in the ritual, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" President Roosevelt ascended the platform and bowed to the distinguished prelate. Taking then his daughter's hand he placed it in that of the bridegroom.

Having performed this function, the President resumed his place at the right of Mrs. Roosevelt.

The best man, Mr. Perkins, then produced from a pocket of his waist coat the gold cord with which the couple were wedded and handed it to Mr. Longworth. When he had placed it on the fourth finger of his bride's left hand, the Bishop pronounced that they were "man and wife."

At the conclusion of the service which coupled less than ten minutes, Mr. and Mrs. Longworth held formal reception of the guests attending upon the ceremony. President Roosevelt was the first to greet and to offer his best wishes to the bride and groom.

He was followed by Mrs. Roosevelt and then by the bride's brothers and sisters in the order of the ages. Mr. Longworth and the sisters of the bridegroom then extended their con-

A Southern Judge Cured.

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes:

"A friend advised me to try your Peru-na, which I did, and was immediately benefited and cured. The third bottle completed the cure."—H. J. Goss.

Cured in a Few Weeks.

Miss Jean Cowgill, Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., is the leading lady with the Aubrey Stock Co. She writes the following:

"During the past winter of 1901, I suffered for several weeks from a severe attack of grip, which left a serious catarrhal condition of the throat and head."

"Some one suggested Peru-na. As a last resort, after wasting much time and money on physicians, I tried the remedy faithfully, and in a few weeks was as well as ever."—Jean Cowgill.

graduations. They were followed by the distinguished personages present, the Austrian Ambassador and Madame Hengel, under leading the diplomatic contingent as the acting dean of the corps.

Reception in Blue Room.

Immediately after extending their greetings to the bride and bridegroom, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt passed through the main corridor into the Blue room. There they received the guests at the wedding, after which he had offered their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Longworth.

Passing from the Blue room, the guests entered through the Red room and main corridor into the State dining room, where an elaborate buffet wedding breakfast was served. No attempt was made to stay of the guests out, attentive waiters saw that no guests were left unattended.

The reception and the serving of the breakfast continued until shortly after 2 o'clock. By that time the greater number of the guests had left the White House, and the bride had retired to the upper apartment to prepare for her going away.

A photograph of the bride in her wedding gown was taken before her departure from the White House.

Shortly after 4 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Longworth left the White House by the South entrance, thereby avoiding a large and curious throng which had assembled in front of the mansion. Along they entered a large automobile and were driven rapidly away.

They went, it is understood, but no greater number of the guests had left the White House, and the bride had retired to the upper apartment to prepare for her going away.

Grip Resulted in Catarrh.

Miss Alice Bielke, Treasurer Young Women's Society of the Lutheran Church, Monahan, Wis., writes:

"I gratefully acknowledge the good that Peru-na did me after I had been sick with a gripe which left me in a very weak and emaciated condition, with catarrhal trouble of the head and ears."

"My mother suggested that I take it to build up my strength and rid myself of the troublesome catarrh, and it acted with wonderful speed."

"I was able to resume my work inside of two months and I am in splendid health now."—Alice Bielke.

LaGrippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

"It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper, the masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable. Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read 'grip.'"

Without intending to do so, a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful grip had clutched us in its fatal clasp.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip of you? If so, read the following letters.

These testimonials speak for themselves as to the efficacy of Peru-na in cases of la grippe or its after-effects:

Saved by Pe-ru-na.

Hon. James R. Gull is one of the oldest and most esteemed men of Omaha, Neb. He has done much to make it what it is, serving on public boards a number of times. He endorses Peru-na in the following words:

"I am 68 years old, am hale and hearty and Peru-na has helped me attain it. Two years ago I had la grippe—my life was despaired of. Peru-na saved me."—J. R. Gull.

A Relative of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Elias S. Lincoln, who resides at 913 E. street, N. W., Washington, D. C., has the honor of being third cousin to Abraham Lincoln. He writes:

"I had la grippe five times before using your medicine. Four years ago I began the use of Peru-na, since which time I have not been troubled with that disease."

"I can now do as much work at my desk as I ever could in my life. I have gained more than ten pounds in weight."—E. S. Lincoln.

Peru-na Not Only Cured La Grippe but Benefitted the Whole System.

Miss Alice M. Dressler, 1313 N. Bryant Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"After spring I suffered from la grippe and was very badly cured, but the bad after-effects remained through the summer and somehow I did not get strong as I was before."

"One of my college friends who was visiting me asked me try Peru-na and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected."

"It not only cured me of the catarrh but restored me to perfect health, and built up the entire system."—Alice M. Dressler.
